Information Management Solutions Provider OCI Announces Online Absence Management System Demo

Denver, Colorado – February 11, 2009. OCI is pleased to announce the launch of its first-ever online, conceptual product demo to describe the OCI Absence Management System (AMS) in a modern, creative and comprehensible manner. The demo can be viewed at www.oci.com/ams.

OCI's demo features an animated description of the employee absence issues that HR professionals encounter, along with the outcomes that customers can realize by implementing OCI's absence management solution. It highlights OCI's customized approach to meet the specific needs of each customer and support the policies, programs and unique intricacies of every organization. The demo also illustrates how OCI's application service provider (ASP) model provides customers with fast implementation, a low total cost of ownership, and the ability to access the information they need anytime and from anywhere.

The OCI demo educates viewers on the impacts that disparate information silos can have with regards to managing employee absence in an organization. "Educating HR professionals about the many benefits of tracking, managing and understanding data is a key initiative for OCI," says Archie Anderson, President of OCI. "OCI will continue to produce conceptual demonstrations to illustrate how their products can support the needs of HR, Employee Benefit and Risk managers by turning disparate data into information and knowledge that will help them make better business decisions."
