

OCI Risk Predictive Early Referral Application (RPERA) Tool

The OCI Risk Predictive Early Referral Application (RPERA) tool uses an early referral process to identify high-risk claims for early, targeted case management intervention. It can be applied to any and all claims types across healthcare, disability and workers' compensation and is configured using the same discovery and implementation process as other OCI services so that it's customized to match the claim handling and management processes at each company.